Genesis Technologies, Inc. has announced it will offer the Adobe Digital School Collection to accredited K-12 schools. The Digital School Collection from Adobe is a complete multimedia software solution, providing the tools necessary for students to digitally express their creativity in the 21st century classroom. Digital School Collection software covers web publishing and photo-, video-, and audio-editing and also includes document-management and portfolio-creation tools.

The latest versions of Adobe creative and technical software, as well as ready-to-use lessons, help K-12 educators make 21st century skills an integral part of teaching and learning in all academic subjects. Included in the Adobe Digital School Collection is Adobe Photoshop Elements 8, Adobe Premiere Elements 8, Adobe Acrobat 9 Pro, Adobe Soundbooth CS4, Adobe Contribute CS4 and a Teacher Resource DVD with lesson plans and more.

Each solution included in the Digital School Collection promotes learning through multimedia projects and creative exercises, which are included with the Teacher Resource DVD. Adobe Photoshop Elements 8 promotes learning through projects that include enhancing, organizing, and presenting digital photos. Adobe Premiere Elements 8 prepares students through effects-filled video and audio projects that can be shared many ways. Adobe Soundbooth CS4 enables audio based workflow in foreign language classes, helps students to easily prepare podcasts, and polish audio for multi-media projects. Adobe Contribute CS4 allows students and educators to quickly, easily, and affordably update existing websites and blogs. Adobe Acrobat 9 Pro encourages students to collaborate and share documents and portfolios, collect and manage feedback, and create and track more secure forms.

The Adobe Digital School Collection gives students the option of visually expressing what they have learned and observed, allowing them to go well beyond the constraints of a text-only presentation. The software and teaching resources of the Digital School Collection provide a unique toolset for preparing students to succeed in their next level of education and to eventually compete in the competitive global workforce.

Genesis Technologies, Inc. is proud to offer the Adobe Digital School Collection for K-12 schools on its website at www.Genesis-Technologies.com. The Adobe Digital School Collection is only available for K-12 schools. In addition to the Digital School Collection, Genesis Technologies, Inc. offers several other academically-discounted software titles from Adobe for college students, school faculty and staff, and non-profit organizations.
