DALLAS – The Dallas litigation firm of Sayles Werbner has earned its sixth consecutive selection as a “Go-To Law Firm” for the country’s top businesses based on a nationwide survey of in-house counsel at the nation’s leading corporations.

The survey of corporate counsel at Fortune 500 companies across the United States appears in In-House Law Departments at the Top 500 Companies, an upcoming reference guide published by Corporate Counsel magazine.

Sayles Werbner earned selection to the 2010 list of the country’s top corporate law firms based on research conducted by Corporate Counsel editors and independent review of public records, key publications and other resources. The firm is included in the list based on work for Fortune 500 companies in litigation matters.

“Our sixth selection to this list is a testament to the hard work our team provides for some of the most respected corporations in the world” says Sayles Werbner name partner Richard A. “Dick” Sayles. “We take great pride in our relationships with our clients, and are honored that they chose to include our firm in this prestigious group.”

The 2010 In-House Law Departments reference guide is distributed to corporate legal departments and law firms across the nation. This year’s guide will be published in December.

Sayles Werbner’s selection as a “Go-To Law Firm” represents the latest honor for the firm. Firm founders Mark Werbner and Dick Sayles again were included in The Best Lawyers in America guide to the nation’s top attorneys earlier this year, in addition to being named to the Texas Super Lawyers list in Texas Monthly magazine along with firm attorneys Eve L. Henson and William S. Snyder. Also appearing in Texas Monthly were firm attorneys Aimee L. Williams and Joel Israel, who were selected as two of the state’s top young lawyers in the Texas Rising Stars list.

Sayles Werbner has an international reputation as a "go to" trial law firm in multifaceted business litigation, intellectual property, patent litigation, life-altering personal injury cases, product safety lawsuits and other areas of the law.
