Wakefield, NH -- Freedom Phone Services has announced a free evaluation tool provided through a public web site to assist people who are considering starting an Internet-based home business.

"We believe that a genuine business opportunity should not cost money for someone to start, and it should not cost money to run. When a company has a good product or service that is in high demand by the public, there is no reason to charge a fee to go into business," explained David Bresnahan, spokesman for Freedom Phone Services.

Bresnahan's company, Freedom Phone Services, provides communications services through VoIP, cellular, wireless, long-distance, bundled services, satellite television, Internet access, and more. He enables people to become a marketing representative at no cost to begin and no cost to run the business, and provides free information at www.FreedomResidualIncome.com.

"Each marketing representative is given a web site that is completely ready to function, at no cost to them. Everything is there so that a visitor to the site can sign themselves up for whatever services they need. The marketing rep gets a monthly commission for as long as that customer continues to use the service. It's like an Internet vending machine," said Bresnahan.

Many business opportunities are sold for high amounts of money, and then the people who start those businesses are left with shattered dreams because the opportunity was not real. Bresnahan says there should be little or no cost to start and run an Internet business.

"Our site helps people evaluate and decide if an Internet business is right for them. If they want to give it a try we do not charge them one cent. Plus, I will personally help them to market their new web site to other people at no cost at all. We offer an advertising co-op that is free to join for our marketing reps," said Bresnahan.

The site at www.FreedomResidualIncome.com offers free information to help site visitors determine what they are looking for in a home-based Internet business.

"Our marketing reps make money doing something very simple. They offer people the opportunity to save money on communications services that they are already using. They also offer the latest technology and communications products, such as VoIP. We provide them with a web site and training, all at no cost. Success is not difficult with a business like that," said Bresnahan.
