LOS ANGELES, CA (January 13, 2010)- After dominating the Russian music scene with his debut album "The Voice," singing sensation George Hodos has now aimed his sights at the U.S. to release his highly-anticipated album "George Hodos: Just A Man," distributed through Universal Music Group and produced by the buzzworthy LA-based production team "The Alumni."

Of the new album, The Alumni share, "We first signed George after following his success in Russia as a solo Pop/R&B artist. He had an amazing star quality that grabbed us the first time he stepped in the studio. We're very excited about releasing his U.S. record and are confident he will surpass his success in the Russian market. It's such a great record that celebrity DJs such as 'D.J. Escape' and 'D.J. Sammy J' have already jumped in and done smash remixes that we plan to release as well."

The Alumni have also employed the skills of famed music man Jason Dauman, who alongside Universal Music Group, will be promoting and distributing George's new album. Dauman is known for his expertise in promotion and track record of chart-topping Billboard hits which include: Tiffany's "Higher," Henri's "Some Girls," "Push the Button" and "When You Walk Away," Stephani Krise's "Tell It to the Moon," Esza Kaye's "Walking Down Madison," Lenna's "Evenly," DJ Scotty K featuring Knockhopper's "Goodnight Tonight" and the forthcoming Samantha Cole single, "Angel of Mine."

Additionally, expect George Hodos' first single "Just A Man" featuring Snoop Dogg to hit the airwaves with his album to follow.

ABOUT GEORGE HODOS

Known in his native country of Russian as "The Voice", singing prodigy George Hodos debuted his first album, aptly titled "The Voice" at the age of 20. The album dropped and it's single "Where do I Go" soared to the top of the Russian charts landing George on Radio, VH1, "Musicbox" and several magazine covers including Russia's version of "Entertainment Weekly, MK Magazine's "Top 50 Men of Russia" as well as a pictorial and editorial write up in Playboy. George Hodos is now set to make his US debut with his album "George Hodos: Just A Man" due to release January 2010.

ABOUT THE ALUMNI

LA based production team The Alumni have wasted no time in their three year partnership by landing on Billboard's top 10 for producing on Stephani Krise song, "Tell it to the Moon," and production of artist Jaime Henri's single "Some Girls" which appeared on Billboard top 10 Club Hits. The Alumni have just danced into the Billboard charts again last week with their production on another Henri record "I Wanna Be Your Baby". Consisting of notable songwriter/producer's Anthony Meyer and Christopher Aaron, This dynamic duo has also co-wrote and produced with artists including Kaya Jones (Pussycat Dolls), Raven Symone and Hannah Montana's Mitchel Musso. The Alumni have also helped create remix versions of well-loved songs such as Timbaland's "Give it to Me" which featured Justin Timberlake and Nelly Furtado, Jill Scott's "Cross My Mind", Patti LaBelle and Carlos Santana's "In Your Eyes," and Sting's hit song "Desert Rose." It's no surprise this dynamic duo is making way as one of the most watched talents in the music industry.
