London, United Kingdom. 01 February 2010. SC Magazine, a secure computing publication targets IT security professionals, gave Deepnet Unified Authentication Platform a five-star rating.

After completing SC Magazine's multifactor authentication group test, Deepnet Unified Authentication Platform received high scores across all six categories, including product features, ease of use, performance, documentation, support and value for money. "The solution was easy to install and manage, easy to use and provided good support for token and authentication options. The price is very attractive for environments large or small", commented by SC Magazine during the publication's multifactor authentication group test.

Deepnet Unified Authentication Platform is widely used in hundreds of organizations worldwide, protecting VPN remote access, Windows local and remote desktop, Outlook Web Access and Outlook Anywhere, Citrix and 2X virtual desktops, online-banking and ecommerce web applications.
