ChemLogix LLC, the leading provider of comprehensive chemical industry transportation management and technology services (chemlogix.com), was recently honored by Sterling Commerce as the 2009 Reseller of the Year for Sterling Transportation Management System (TMS). The award recognizes ChemLogix' excellence in providing chemical industry logistics solutions that leverage Sterling TMS. ChemLogix delivers on-demand TMS solutions as well as customized management outsourcing services to global chemical shippers, providing real-time visibility into the transportation network while optimizing logistics processes for improved customer service and significant cost savings.

Ralph Greco, Sterling Commerce Vice President of Global Partners, presented the award to ChemLogix at Sterling Commerce headquarters in Dublin, OH on January 8, 2010. Accepting the honor for ChemLogix were Steve Hamilton, ChemLogix President and CEO, and Mike Skinner, Vice President of ChemLogix Technologies. Sterling Commerce, an AT&T Inc (NYSE:T) company, provides more than 30,000 customers worldwide collaborative applications and integration solutions to help them accelerate revenues and reduce costs. Sterling Commerce created the Reseller of the Year award this year to recognize the contribution that its select reseller partnerships make to strengthen customer relationships and improve the company's bottom line.

"We consider Sterling Transportation Management System to be the leading technology of its kind in the market," said Mike Skinner. "We're pleased with this recognition as a top reseller as a way to highlight our business success. Through our relationship with Sterling Commerce, Chemlogix' TMS services now lead the chemical industry in delivering logistics savings and service improvements."
