Peak Discovery, Inc., a supplier of document review and eDiscovery services, today announced that John Thacher has joined the company as National Director of Project Management. John's experience brings a comprehensive set of skills and an in depth understanding of the document review and project management process.

Prior to joining Peak, John was Director of Project Management at DeNovo Legal, and before he was an Assistant Professor of Management, at Eastern Connecticut State University. Prior to his time in academia, John practiced as an attorney. He graduated from Albany Law School and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute with a joint JD/MBA.

"John's appointment as National Director will deliver increased value to our clients," said Michael Dalewitz, Senior Managing Director, Peak Discovery, Inc. "His experience in structuring and running document reviews of all sizes will impart innovation and cost savings to our clients."

About Peak Discovery

Whether large or small, on-site or off-site, Peak Discovery provides Document Review and eDiscovery services that are delivered on time and cost effectively.

Document Review: Peak has been staffing document reviews since 1995. We incorporate infrastructure, technology and project management to provide flexible and efficient solutions. Our proprietary software, Peak Review Metrics, is a platform agnostic tool that is offered at no cost on suitable projects. It enables a metrics driven approach to recruitment and selection, and throughout the review. The Project Managers use the data to ensure high productivity and accuracy as well as lower QC costs.

eDiscovery: Faced with the growing demands and complexities of the eDiscovery process, clients can turn to our consulting service to improve their systems, processes, compliance and defensibility.
