Horse Racing Simulation LLC today announced that by May 1, it will release an additional 50 web sites focusing on all aspects of the sport of horse racing. The information provided by these web sites will range from general horse racing education to racing rules and guidelines as well as betting tips and horse race handicapping. Also provided are reviews and recommendations covering racetracks and the different attractions offered in addition to the racing programs.

Some of these new sites will also promote and feature the best horse racing web sites to visit when it comes to acquiring all types of information covering every aspect of the sport.

Horse racing is a very in-depth sport, therefore Horse Racing Simulation will continue to develop web sites targeting all the different components of the racing industry. The more targeted content Horse Racing Simulation can provide, the more value they offer to both the novice and hard-core racing enthusiast.

Their flagship site, HorseRaceGame.com is focused on educating and entertaining all levels of racing fans by providing, first-hand, a realistic experience on what it's like to be a jockey, trainer, breeder or owner of a champion thoroughbred. All of their additional sites provide factual information to help support the industry through general awareness and educational programs.

"It is the goal of Horse Racing Simulation over the next year to operate over 200 racing-related web sites and provide as much information as possible on every aspect of thoroughbred racing," states Larry Campbell, Business Development Strategist at Horse Racing Simulation.
