Press release from: Film-Scoring.com

Starting March 2010 the new film-business specific portal Film-Scoring.com opens for registering users for the beta phase.

It is targeted to provide a communications and collaborations platform for the film music business. With means specifically tailored to the film business' needs, creatives and producers can get together easily and efficiently. Film-Scoring.com's target group consists of composers, arrangers, musicians on the one side and producers, directors and other film people on the other. Projects can be marked and filtered for budget range, thus offering a broad variety of projects (feature films, tv productions, short films, students debuts) being presented in a sophisticated way.

The platform is build for international use, offering two languages (English/German) with auto selection for the visiting user. More languages will follow later. Registration for the beta is available now -- without charge or obligations.
