Thousand Oaks, CA (January 10, 2007)— Children’s singer/songwriter Corey Leland, is set to appear at the Civic Arts Plaza on January 17, 2007 for a matinee showing of A Kid’s Life musical. The A Kid’s Life musical is built on lyrics and music written by Corey Leland. The musical-- produced by director Keith Markinson, just started its first U.S. tour on December 27, 2006. Presented by Community Educational Entertainment, Inc., it is an uplifting show that teaches children respect for the environment, self-esteem, and kindness to animals and each other. Filled with upbeat music (songs like "When I Grow Up I Wanna Be Happy"), entertaining dancing and adorable characters—parents and children both will leave feeling inspired by the message within the music. A Kid’s Life is a wholesome show perfect for the age range of three to six-- but as the theme song states it is "a show that's just for kids, no matter what your age."

Corey Leland has written four children’s music albums. He prides himself on offering “songs you want your kids to hear” as every song is written with consideration of a parent’s perspective on each topic. In addition to the music for the show A Kid’s Life, Leland has also released three CDs for his The Insects Rock! music series. The CDs feature songs such as "Mommy Won't Get You Everything," "Why Would I Wanna Wear Diapers," and "Everyday I Exercise."

“I hadn't originally planned to be writing and recording music for kids and families. After many years of determination and development as a songwriter/musician, I began to explore how I could share my music in the best possible way... it was through this intention that I was signed to write the songs for A Kid’s Life musical. After I had completed that project, I began creating the Insects Rock! musical series,” says Leland.

M. Loring Communications strives to offer its clients the best service possible. We do this by offering an hourly rate or retainer so that you can adjust your PR needs to your budget. PR should not break the bank... and everyone should be able to hire a publicist.

MLC offers an individual approach based on your specific needs. We do not write “cookie-cutter” press releases or pitch letters. You could do that yourself. You’re coming to us so that we can go above and beyond by using our experience and knowledge. We offer way more than just PR, we offer support and guidance.

We are nothing like the stereotypical PR firms in Los Angeles. We don’t take your money and run. We don’t tell you we can do something that can’t happen. We are never too busy, hard to reach or unethical. We don’t SPIN everything. What we are is a small PR company that carefully selects clientele to ensure success for both parties involved. We not only make sure we are a right fit for our clientele, but we also ensure we have the appropriate resources to devote.

MLC doesn’t believe in conventional PR. We have a fresh outlook on publicity and use imaginative and ground-breaking ways to achieve our clients’ goals. We don’t think that there is only one method to PR. If there was, everyone would always be promoted the same way and who wants that?

Mona Loring’s keen business sense allows her to excel in this industry. Many publicists simply learn from experience. Mona Loring had the gut instinct from the get-go. Not only does she have a solid education and experience, she was born to do this... and that is the MLC difference.
