Orlando, FL – March 15, 2007 – Today, Daniel Imperato announced that he will be attending and speaking at the National Libertarian State Leadership Alliance (LSLA) Conference in Orlando this Friday and Saturday March 16-17 at the Orlando International Airport Conference Center.

"First of all, I want to thank the leadership of the Libertarian Party for inviting me to this conference. I believe that it is important that we open the dialogue amongst all third parties. The Libertarians have a very strong national organization and can be very influential in a national third party push," stated Imperato.

The Libertarian Party, one of America's largest third parties, currently has ballot access in 26 states throughout the United States of America.

The Libertarian National Committee (LNC) will also be meeting during this weekend to discuss key issues for the Libertarian Party, such as national platforms, ballot access, and their upcoming LP 2008 National Nominating Convention.

Imperato has previously reached out for the Reform Party as well, and is calling out for all third parties to unite for the upcoming 2008 election.

"America needs a third option. For too long, the Democrats and Republicans have held a monopoly on our political system. Now, the third parties of America must stand up, unite, and make their way into a system that is trying to keep them out. We, the people, are the government, not the Democrats and Republicans. It's time that the people of America realize that, and its time that we put our collective forces together to make for a Better America."
