Houston, TX - April, 2007 – FrenchCreek Production, Inc (FCP) a Franklin, PA based manufacturer of quality Fall Protection and Rescue/Recovery Systems, has officially announced its NEW warehouse location in Houston, TX.

The new warehouse space comes at a very strategic time for FCP. The past year has brought continued growth for the company in many aspects, including the recent addition of Bill Keene as the South Central Regional Sales Manager. “We are very excited to have Bill on board with FrenchCreek Production, covering the South Central territory of the U.S.,” says FCP founder and President Carl Wible. “With Bill’s support, now is the perfect time to establish the new warehouse stock in Houston. It will enable us to better serve our customers by getting products into their hands as quickly as possible!”

Partnerships with Rep Groups and Distributors nationwide have assisted in the success of catapulting the FrenchCreek name and brand recognition within the Fall Protection industry. The new warehouse distribution location in Houston is the direct result of an ongoing relationship with the Lawless Group (www.lawlessgroup.com), who’s main headquarters are out of Dallas, Texas.

FCP’s mission is to manufacture quality products with competitive pricing, through the use of old-fashioned work ethics, an honest approach to business, and excellent customer service. “More and more people are seeking user-friendly alternatives to the giant corporate retailers in our industry,” explained Ron Adams, Sales Engineer for FrenchCreek Production. “Customers like our product and prices, but really appreciate the personal touches. For instance, our products are manufactured in the USA, and we can also customize our products to fit the needs and requests of the end user. Plus, if you call our customer service department you will immediately speak to an actual person, and if you need technical assistance or advice, a consultation expert will provide you with the necessary support! Those things really make a difference!”
