New York- April 29, 2007 – In another case of politics meets entertainment, 2008 Presidential Candidate Daniel Imperato was seen this weekend at the 6th annual Tribeca Film Festival.

Imperato, who has attended the festival over the past two years, was reportedly there to start the launch of his new reality TV series, "America 's Next President".

No doubt that mingling with today's rising actors and stars would be a good venue to gain popularity for his newest reality TV project.

Reports have Imperato, was was recently ordained in New York by Bishop Fernando Rodgriguez as a Chaplain of the Latin/African American Chaplain's Association (LACA), being seen with noted deal maker Topper Quinn. After meeting with Quinn, Imperato was seen with industry insiders at Cipriani's on 42nd Street in Midtown Manhattan.

The "America's Next President" project focuses on an independent candidate (Daniel Imperato) who upsets the Democrats and Republicans and wins the support of the youth across the country who help come up with solutions for his campaign.

Imperato has recently disclosed that video clips will now be placed on his search engine i1search, www.i1search.com, owned by Imperiali Inc. The video clips will be clips from Imperato's campaign trail.

In addition, Imperato is working on an epic film by the name of "The Red Worm", an end times film that has attracted attention from major Oscar winning talent to participate in the film.
