A new website shows how can you make the value of your home explode, by using laminate flooring.

“One way to add value to your home is to consider laminate flooring installation. Laminate floors combine the beauty and elegance of hard wood, or tile floors with the easy maintenance of linoleum or vinyl flooring.” says Frank Lemelin, director of “Install Laminate Flooring” (www.installlaminateflooring.com/) Constructed from a high density fiber (HDF) wood board topped with a wood or stone pattern, laminate flooring is incredibly durable. Resistant to scratching, scuffing and burning, the beauty of laminate floors will last a lifetime. And now, people can find help for their laminate flooring problems easily in the Internet.

“If you're planning to redecorate your home including laminate flooring installation , there are some decisions you need to make about the type of laminate flooring that will work best for you.” Adds Lemelin. Amongst common folks it is commonly thought that the harder the HDF core, the higher the quality of the laminate flooring. The second mark of laminate floor quality is the means by which the core is bound to the pattern and protective layers. There are two basic types of laminate flooring to consider

Direct Pressure - Direct Pressure lamination consists of a one-step process to bind the flooring layers into a single cohesive unit.

High Pressure - High pressure lamination produces a more durable end product by binding the flooring layers over several steps.

Once you've decided on the design and product you want to use, you're ready to begin the process of laminate flooring installation. The various laminate products currently on the market offer several different options for laminate flooring installation. The type of installation you choose will depend on your budget, your commitment and ability to execute the project and your preference in design. When shopping for laminate flooring, you can expect to find products that require the following laminate flooring installation techniques:

- Standard Flooring - Standard laminate flooring is installed by using glue to affix the flooring to the sub floor. Standard laminate flooring installation is both cost-effective and secure.
- Pre-Glued Flooring - You may also come across laminate flooring products that have been treated with glue prior to sale. To complete the laminate flooring installation, water is applied to the underside of the board to activate the glue.
- Snap and Lock - There is no glue required for a Snap and Lock laminate flooring installation. The floor boards are instead linked by a locking mechanism on the underside of the wood. Snap and Lock flooring is very easy to install, but may be more expensive than laminate flooring installed with glue.
