SAN ANTONIO, TX— Susie Glennan, better known as The Busy Woman of TheBusyWoman.com, will present a free webinar on how to increase productivity by blocking time. This presentation will help harried professionals handle those pesky to-do items without sacrificing personal time. The seminar is part of ForAccess.com and VAisBorn.com summer experts' series and is free to all members and visitors this summer.

"ForAccess.com strives to provide its members and visitors with resources that help reduce time and costs. We also want to help them succeed in their businesses. By offering these free online seminars, we hope to encourage, inspire, and support business professionals to higher levels of success," says Jeanne Fuller, president of ForAccess.com. "Susie's expertise and resources are sure to help listeners find solutions to address the issue of increased time demands." ForAccess.com is a consumer advocacy website dedicated to helping consumers make an informed decision prior to hiring professionals such as counselors, realtors, physicians, and many others.

Glennan will present the seminar on Monday, June 25, and Wednesday, June 28. Drawing on her years of experience, she will share with attendees the power of blocking time to dramatically increase personal productivity while also easing pressure involved with work, family, and daily responsibilities. Glennan is a well-known presenter who has helped hundreds of people get a handle on their hectic lives and learn simple techniques to help them manage time more effectively. Since 1993, the company has used a simple, over-exaggerated, non-scientific personality quiz to determine the personality type of the customer.

Glennan's TheBusyWoman.com planners and organizers have been featured on Cornerstone Television, in Blush Magazine, and in Mom's Business Magazine. "We're growing every day, reaching out and helping busy people take control of their schedules so that they can enjoy what matters most," Glennan emphasized.

ForAccess.com training sessions are only 30 minutes long, and offered twice during the week so busy professionals can choose the time that best fits their schedules. Additionally, the speakers have agreed to stay connected in the virtual meeting room for an additional 30 minutes after the presentation to answer any specific questions.

"We encourage people to visit the ForAccess.com and view all our upcoming seminars on our 'resources' page," said Fuller. To learn more about the free summer series, send inquiries to info@foraccess.com or call 1-877-495-1511.
