Press release from: KERN AG, Global Language Service

KERN Global Language Services – your partner for translation and interpreting in all world languages – presents its website re-launch in the Web 2.0 Design from 1st July 2007

The website has become even more attractive and user-friendly for its visitors: simple, fast, sophisticated and really well-structured. The improved menu navigation has made it even easier for the visitor to access all the information he needs.

The Website re-launch informs the visitor about the full range of services offered by KERN Global Language Services. By using all the facilities provided by the Web 2.0 technologies in the new design of the website, the visitor can find detailed information about languages, specialist translations, express translations, certified translations, the translation process, terminology management, Translation Memory Tools, Project Management, DTP, print, interpreting, localisation (software, websites, E-Commerce and XML), language training, und language programmes abroad.

“We have given special attention to communication on our website. Interested parties and customers should be able to contact us faster, more easily and partially free of charge. From now on we are offering not just familiar email, fax and telephone facilities, but also a vanity telephone number, route planners to our locations, call back functions and Skype via our website. It will be possible for all our customers to reach us speedily and easily from everywhere“, explains Dr. Thomas Kern, board member of KERN Global Language Services.

In the near future, the website will be available to our international visitors and customers in Spanish, French, Italian, Russian and Chinese. In order to make working with KERN even more efficient, KERN offers an online tool for the placing of orders.

It will be worth visiting KERN Global Language Services regularly in the future too, to find out about the current offers, latest developments and job opportunities in the KERN group.
