Madrid, Spain - July 3, 2007 - Today, 2008 US Presidential Candidate, Daniel Imperato, left on what will be a short week-long tour through Europe in order to strengthen ties and relationships for his upcoming campaign.

His first stop will take him to Madrid where he will meet with political people to strengthen ties to the Hispanic population in the United States.

From there, Imperato will go to Vatican City state in Rome to meet with key Vatican officials, in order to gain support from the Catholic community here in America.

Imperato is a Papal Knight with honors from Pope John Paul II and the Vatican.

After a quick stop in Cairo, Egypt to meet with key advisors, Imperato will head to London where he will meet with the Orden Bonaria. During those meetings, Imperato will be discussing the Imperato Foundation, and strategic partners and associations around the world to advance humanitarian causes in the United States.

The Orden Bonaria is one the oldest and largest humanitarian groups in the world. Recently, Imperato was knighted by the order. The Imperato Association is a US based charity that focuses on education, youth development, and support for our troops and their families.

After meeting with key political leaders from around the world, Imperato will return to leading his growing campaign. Currently, he is organizing a 33 million man and woman e-March to change America one vote and one dollar at a time. (To Contribute Your Dollar and Pledge Your Vote for Imperato Click Here).

In addition, Imperato will be resuming his regular video casts July 11, 2007, which can be viewed at www.imperato2008.com
