June 21, 2007 - Qulix Systems has spent at one of the picturesque places near Minsk. Informal, amicable atmosphere, thematic evening party, beautiful weather, sunshine, fellowship and fireworks at night.

During 7 years of its existence Qulix Systems has grown up from a newbie to one of the leading software development companies in Belarus. There has been a lot of professional work and even more of substandard and innovative approaches to business. But what is the most important - there has always been and will be a friendly and first-class working atmosphere which is the very thing that helps to work fruitfully from the times when foundation stone was laid.

The main motto of our company has always been our software products quality assurance. And it will remain unchanged. The standards of quality affect not only our professional services but also all other areas of our personnel daily life.

For the first and the most it is the mutual and respectful communication and open amicable relations; interaction with customers based on trust and mutual respect, partnership and interest in the results of collaboration; ever-going investigation and deployment of innovative technologies, solutions and approaches for technical processes optimization; constant investments into growth of our staff's professional level; effective and timely communication processes in the company on all levels – from regular workers to top-managers; drive for constant dynamic growth and self-perfection.

Figure “seven” contains a magical power so we are sure that this year will be a real breakthrough for our company in the high-tech software solutions markets. We are active, young, world-class talented and positive about future.
