Drive Backup Server Express provides affordable, real-time and easy-to-perform server backup and disaster recovery solution for small companies.

December, 2007- Paragon Software Group, the technological leader in innovative data security and data management technologies, announces the release of Drive Backup Server Express 2008. This new version of Drive Backup is designed and targeted specifically towards small companies looking for reliable and inexpensive backup and bare-metal recovery solution to support a disaster recovery plan. IT professionals providing services can also bring more benefits to their customers without complicated licensing schemes and complex infrastructure requirements.

Most small businesses lack the resources not only to own but to manage enterprise class backup systems, such as tape or disk-to-disk storage, which are viewed as essential for best-in-class data protection. Others may have a small budget, but not enough to provide for a quick, disaster recovery plan. Small businesses tend to suffer larger and more expensive downtimes and data loss. Paragon Drive Backup Server Express provides those small business the easy and reliable server protection while requiring minimal training and infrastructure.

The images can be saved to DVD, external hard drive or network/USB hard drive and can also be used for bare metal recovery within minutes. Special System Recovery options enable disaster recovery in automatic mode. In addition, our Zero-install option allows for the creation of an image even without software installation to be made.

Drive Backup Server Express supports all Windows versions and does not require any special hardware. Paragon Drive Backup Server Express is available directly from Paragon Software Group for $249.95

Addressing the Total Cost of Ownership issue, Paragon also provides the product in the form of a Technician License which is licensed per Technician and has no limitation on number of servers served. It is available for $999
