DALLAS, TX – Jan. 19, 2006 – CBG Safety & Surveillance Technology, a national retailer of the highest quality safety and surveillance products on the market is pleased to announce the unveiling of its newly updated corporate website (www.cbgsurveillanceequipment.com). The new website will allow both existing clients and new customers added convenience and efficiency for searching out and purchasing top quality and affordable security and surveillance equipment 24 hours a day 7 days a week.

With crime again on the rise the need for better protection for yourself and your property continues to also rise. Many recent technological advances make defending and protecting your home, office, or retail storefront more affordable than ever before. Because of its affordability security cameras, hidden / covert cameras, and basic surveillance equipment have become mainstream. In fact many insurance companies now give small businesses and home owners discounts on their insurance rates for having surveillance and security equipment installed in their buildings.

If this isn't reason enough to take action, the federal government has made millions of dollars available in the form of grants through the Department of Homeland Security. Public schools and businesses all across the United States are applying and receiving these allocated funds to improve both their security and surveillance capabilities.

“The new CBG website reflects the evolution and growth of our company and we are excited about the prospects of future growth it will provide us”, said Chris Rock, president of CBG Safety & Surveillance Technology. “We are very pleased to be partnered with a leading web development and SEO firm such as SlickRockWeb.com.
