Planet X Fiction, a growing online comic book company based within Victoria, BC, Canada, announced today of a fully interactive fan experience revolving around their pioneer comic book entitled “Cade’s War” that will be debuting on January 25th.

The founder of Planet X Fiction, Brad Johnson has announced that this fully interactive comic book fan experience is unlike anything ever seen before as fans will be able to partake into an in-depth, online interactive adventure.

“The Cade’s War comic book is brought to life thanks to the fans,” Brad Johnson stated, “This is taking the new era of the comic book to a whole other level. The Cade’s War Interactive Fan Experience will give everyone the chance to create their own character and interact in a vast, unknown universe filled with interactive multimedia and an appealing role playing game experience. The fans who deliver the most entertaining and exciting adventures through their character will be rewarded by having their character become a star in the next upcoming Cade’s War issue. We’re looking for several entertaining new characters as Cade’s War has always been about giving the fans what they want, and now they can actually be a part of the story and help decide the outcome of the first official issue.”

For a fee of $3 per membership, Planet X Fiction founder, Brad Johnson guarantees that the interactive experience revolving around the Cade’s War story will be a very appealing experience for any comic book fan.

“It’s a one time fee and it will ensure the experience stays alive at its best. What the $3 membership pays for is a guaranteed credit listing within the next Cade’s War comic book as well as a free digital comic of the Cade’s War first issue once released. If members register before January 31st, they will also receive a free digital download copy of the Cade’s War teaser comic that is available to purchase on January 18th. But the best benefit in regards to this membership is that 10 cents out of every $3 membership will go towards the READ foundation to help at risk children become proficient readers.”
