

Second Life: Euro reaches All-Time-High of over 400 Linden dollars per Euro

Date: 01-14-2008 05:24 PM CET

Category: IT, New Media & Software

Press release from: euroSLEX

Today, the continued weakness of the US dollar versus the Euro helped push the Euro higher versus the Linden Dollar as well: At 12 noon, the mid-price (i.e. the average of bid and ask prices) of the EUR/SLL cross on the euroSLEX pushed through resistance at 400 and reached 403.4. This is the highest level since euroSLEX opened december last year. The Swiss Franc also reached a new high at 248 Linden Dollars.

"This means that Second Life gets cheaper for our customers, because they can get more Linden Dollars for their Euros" said Iliana Suppan, managing director of Virtual World Services GmbH, the company behind euroSLEX.

Company: Virtual World Services GmbH
Address: Andreas-Hofer-Platz 7, 8010 Graz, Austria
Managing Director: Iliana Suppan
E-Mail: suppan@virtualworldservices.eu
Website: www.euroslex.com

euroSLEX is the „European Second Life Exchange“, a true currency exchange for trading Linden$ against the Euro, British Pound, and Swiss Franc. The current price as determined by the market forces of supply and demand gives euroSLEX customers access to the best price available under current market conditions. The fully automatic trading platform at www.euroslex.com reduces manual intervention to a minimum, which means lowest commissions of just 0.5% to 2.5%, depending on trading volume. The service is operated by Virtual World Services GmbH, a real-world company registered in Austria with the mission to bring a new level of professionalism and trust to Second Life.

You can find this press release here