This session will describe SSHA's role in implementing e-Health in Ontario. SSHA was created in 2003 to electronically connect health care professionals to each other and to patient information – across the health care system. With its network and e-mail products that reach one-quarter of all publicly-funded health care locations and providers, SSHA's products are increasingly being used as the electronic way for health care to share patient information electronically. SSHA is contributing essential elements of Ontario's Electronic Health Record. Find out where SSHA is at in its role as Ontario's e-Health enabler.

Laurie brings more than 20 years of IT consulting experience and over 10 years experience in health care from an IT consulting and volunteer perspective. In her Client Services role, she brings her leadership skills to the deployment of SSHA products and services to Ontario's health care sector.
