Monitis, one-stop web performance monitoring and analytics service, announces activation of new monitoring location in Sydney, Australia. This new enhancement will provide companies better geographic performance insight at their websites.

Website monitoring is essential to insure that a website is available to visitors and the server where the web site is hosted experiences minimal or no downtime. Customers most probably will not return again if the Web site is always inaccessible causing great annoyance and lose of trust among users. Monitoring provides real-time information about website availability and response time from multiple geographic locations and helps to minimize website downtime and increase customer satisfaction for target market clients.

Monitis servers located around the globe in several geographic locations observe customers' Web servers from different networks worldwide. The more locations the better picture on website availability and better geographic performance insight at a specific location across the world. Monitis Team who continuously improves professional website monitoring service for better monitoring experience, now provides external monitoring from Australian monitoring in addition to US, UK, Panama and Germany already available locations.

“With rapid increase of our clients who have global services we plan to expand geographic coverage of our monitoring servers. Our clients require larger insight at their website by being able to monitor their Websites and servers from different physical locations around the globe”, says Hovhannes Avoyan, Monitis CEO.
