

Growing trend amongst expat communities to give the services of a tutor as a gift to express thanks

Date: 04-30-2008 06:43 PM CET

Category: Science & Education

Press release from: Tutors International

Tutors International announces an increase in enquiries for private tutors from wealthy expatriates who are seeking original gifts for foreign colleagues and associates.

"The question of what to give as a gift in these circumstances is something I am hearing more and more about," says Adam Caller, founder of Tutors International, specialist providers of live-in tutors. "Our clients are wealthy individuals, many of whom are living outside of their resident country, and use our private tutoring services to ensure that their children receive the very best education regardless of family circumstances. Either through business ventures or personal matters, many have found themselves looking for a way to say thank you to a foreign colleague or civil servant in such a way that crosses the cultural divide and is truly original. A car is a common gift, but it's becoming increasingly popular to give gifts that are less materialistic and show a genuine desire to have a positive impact on someone's life," Adam explained.

"When I first heard about the idea of giving the services of one of our live-in tutors to a colleague's family I was intrigued," Adam said. "I'd never had an enquiry like that before. But then when I thought more about it, I realized that it's a fantastic way to express thanks to someone who may already have received all of the run-of-the-mill business gifts. Giving the gift of an excellent, tailored education to the colleague's child not only expresses thanks in a really creative way, it also shows that person that the giver is genuinely interested in helping the child to succeed academically. I can't think of a better way to show gratitude than that," Adam enthused.

David Spencer
Tutors International
Clarendon House
52, Cornmarket Street
Oxford
OX1 3HJ
England
www.tutors-international.com
+44 (0) 1865 435 135
tutors-international@momentumws.co.uk

Tutors International is a worldwide organization providing experienced private tutors to work with children of all ages and nationalities. Tutors are available for full-time tutoring positions, for major support and tutoring outside school hours, or for home-schooling.

Tutors International provide tutors in a wide variety of situations from helping students re-take critical exams, helping pupils with the transition of moving between international school systems, and supporting youngsters with AD/HD and dyslexia. They provide a bespoke service to find the right tutor that suits the child's needs and aspirations, and if a live-in tutor is required, it is essential that the assigned tutor is the right match for the family and fits in the environment.

Tutors International was founded by Adam Caller who has tutored students of all ages. He has received specialist training in dyslexia and Attention Deficit Disorder and is very sensitive to children's educational difficulties. He has now turned this expertise to recruiting, training and placing other tutors to help families.

You can find this press release here