The computer radio talk show, Computer America, begins its fifteenth broadcast season this month. Computer America hosted by Craig Crossman airs nationwide Monday through Friday on both The Business TalkRadio Network™ and The Lifestyle TalkRadio Network™.

“In a world where entertainment programs come and go seemingly overnight, we think fifteen years is a strong statement about the value we bring to our audience,” states show host and syndicated columnist Craig Crossman.

“People have learned they can trust Computer America to cover the world of personal computers, updating them on the important new products and services that will make their life in front of the keyboard better, and do it all with a sense of humor and a flair for entertainment.”

“Our continued listener support and great ratings has attracted some of the biggest industry personalities to the show. This, of course, reflects back on the quality of programming we provide.”

“Computer America is currently featured in the PodcastBunker.com rankings at number 8 in their Top 20.

“PodcastBunker.com is designed to find and promote "Only The Best Podcast" on the net, taking Audio Quality and the value of the content into consideration.”

“As each and every podcast is reviewed one at a time for quality, and only the hand selected are listed, we are flattered to be on the list.”

“On behalf of my Co-Host Carey Holzman, the entire staff, and everyone at both of our networks, I would like to thank of our listeners for their continued support. Fifteen years, and counting,” concludes Crossman.
