Port St. Lucie, FL, June 17, 2008 - Just two years after joining Guru.com, the world's largest online service marketplace, Triumph Communications, LLC is proud to announce its achievement of the top ranking in the freelance writing industry. Completing more than 100 four-star projects, the highest client rating in Guru's system, Triumph provides business writing solutions for clients all over the world.

Launched in 2006, Triumph Communications works primarily with internet marketers, web and graphic designers, and marketing firms. "Many of our clients are good writers. It's not that they couldn't write their own press releases, articles, website copy, and sales materials – it's just that they realize their time is better spent doing the things only they can do. Unless they get paid to write, doing it themselves is more expensive than outsourcing," said Sue LaPointe, owner of Triumph Communications.

Triumph Communications started with a single freelance writer and has expanded to become a team of more than a dozen freelancers with varied backgrounds and writing specialties. Clients benefit from this team approach in several ways. One is that they receive their completed projects quickly because each project is matched with a writer who has experience in their specific topic. Triumph writers enjoy the opportunity to work from home, using their writing talents on a steady stream of varied writing projects.

Sue LaPointe has worked as a freelance writer and editor since late 2001, but launched Triumph after working for six months with a business coach through Loral Langemeier's Live Out Loud program. "My coach, Robin Powers, taught me how to find writing jobs that paid well, how to promote my business, and how to grow it bigger than just myself," LaPointe added. By documenting the writing business building process in her recent book, "Working Writer Happy Writer: How to Build a Thriving Writing Business from NOTHING," LaPointe has also helped dozens of other writers launch writing businesses of their own. She also publishes a free weekly newsletter for freelance writers, which is available on her website, www.workingwriterhappywriter.com.
