SEATTLE – LuxuryRealEstate.com, the most-viewed luxury real estate Web site in the world, recently added 2,383 properties in Europe and the Caribbean from its member Unique Living, International Real Estate to its total number of listings, which currently tops 66,000.

“Our international network continues to expand and deepen our presence in top luxury markets around the world,” said John Brian Losh, CEO/publisher of LuxuryRealEstate.com, and CEO, chairman and broker of Ewing & Clark, Inc., Seattle’s oldest real-estate brokerage. “Our Web site makes it much easier for high-end homebuyers to find exactly what they’re looking for, and we help sellers reach many buyers they wouldn’t ordinarily reach.

Unique Living is one of six LuxuryRealEstate.com members in the United Kingdom. They have property listings in seven countries. The following is a breakdown of how many of their 2,383 listings are in each country:

- 1,235 in Spain
- 523 in Portugal
- 417 in France
- 127 in Cyprus
- 77 in the United States (Florida)
- 3 in St. Lucia in the Caribbean
- 1 in Sweden

As one of the United Kingdom’s leading overseas real-estate companies, Unique Living offers expert advice and support for all stages of buying and selling a luxury home abroad. Founded in 2002 by Serge Cowan and Sophie Hammond, the company’s portfolio of luxury properties for sale includes new property developments, resale property, villas, townhouses, penthouses and apartments in prime locations around the world. Unique Living is headquartered in London.

LuxuryRealEstate.com is a global network of luxury realty firms, providing marketing materials, Web products and referral services to its members. In April 2008 Ultimate Homes magazine published its annual list of luxury-broker networks with the largest number of the most-expensive homes in the world represented by the members of their networks.

LuxuryRealEstate.com topped the list with 420, more than twice the number of luxury properties on the list as the closest peer.
