Press release from: Nvolve Limited

In recent years it has become apparent that many businesses have increasingly taken advantage of business integration solutions to effectively manage their day to day operations and reduce costs through the supply chain. However, recent studies have revealed that over 30 percent of companies are realising that their staff and infrastructure are not capable of handling the growing complexity of evolving standards, processes, and industry standards and regulations.

In response to this companies are attempting to deploy scarce resources to grow and develop an e-Business infrastructure that is constantly evolving and becoming increasingly burdensome to the bottom line of many businesses. Executives are now turning to outsourcing and managed service offering from vendors that are capable of the challenge.

Nvolve Limited, a software company based in Donegal have first hand experience of outsourcing technology to create their core product Nvolve Response™ Blended Learning solution that is now available in the market. For the past four years Nvolve have being outsourcing there technology from an Indian firm and in recent months have further accredited their connection with this firm by taking an equity state in this business and have since become partners.

As Nvolve's core development program has scaled down due to their core product being in the marketplace Nvolve are now making their Indian development team available to other companies that have the same needs and requirements that Nvolve were faced with four years ago. Nvolve have experienced extensive cost savings and benefits in the past and wish to make these available to other companies within Ireland and the UK.

The software development service available from Nvolve allows companies to avail of a wide range of IT resources that are highly motivated and multi skilled in many software skills. A selection of the skills they provide include ASP.net, Sharepoint, MSSQL, MySQL, and PHP. The team can be engaged purely "on demand" with no long commitment and the term of contract can be for one week or for one year depending on the needs of the client.

The major advantage that Nvolve have is that their CTO (who joined Nvolve after the buy in) and also members of his technical team are now permanently based in Donegal along with having a core development team based in Cheennai in India which leads to a very efficient and highly skilled service to clients. Also due to the time difference the Nvolve team are able to work on projects 24 hours a day by combining the activities in Ireland and Nvolve's outsourcing facilities in China.
