New Delhi, India – 14th November 2008: Invoicera has announced its much awaited launch and is all set to make a grand entry on the big stage. Invoicera is a premium payment tracking and invoice billing software. Set up with the primary objective to make online billing an easy to use tool, Invoicera 2.0 incorporates all the features that would delight the customers. The approach has been completely client centric and all the efforts have been directed to make it powerful yet user friendly software. With the launch of Invoicera 2.0, Vinove (the parent company) has once again lived up to its reputation of being efficient and effectual.

After days of dedication and sincerity, impeccable team of professionals at Vinove has been able to come up with highly integrated invoicing/ billing software. Invoicera can automatically generate professionally looking invoices/bills for you, thereby, helps save time and gives some of the best features any billing software can get you.

“With plethora of online billing softwares available and all providing more or less the same set of services, our biggest challenge was to distinguish ourself from the rest. We could do this by making it ‘simple to use’. One need not be a computer techie to avail the full spectrum of services provided by Invoicera” says Parvesh Aggarwal CEO of Invoicera.

"Our corporate and individual customers can match their invoice structure to the way they do business, saving them reconciliation time, and in turn, money." Says Khem Raj, another key official of the company. It seems the company is really upbeat about their new product and is looking forward to overwhelming response from its existing as well as potential clients. With years of experience and expertise in the bag Vinove is confident of roaring into the competition and making a mark in this sphere as well.
