The worldwide largest search engines for continuing medical and dental education medical-congresses.com and dental-kongresse.de report the record of online congress announcements was broken in 2008. The record number of the previous year of 3.000 online announced events was already broken at the end of October. The providers of the website expect to crack the 4.500 mark by the end of the year.

These numbers underline the continuing trend of increasing Internet usage by physicians and the immense importance of continuing medical education. Physicians, dentists and chemists can select between over 90.000 congresses and events on www.dental-kongresse.de and www.medical-congresses.com and furthermore receive detailed information on seminars. User traffic numbers also demonstrate the success of both databases: Over 750.000 page impressions per month were recorded during the current year.

The annually published congress calendar also profits from the Internet success: A high print run and over 4.000 national and international listed events elevate the medical congress calendar 2009 + 1st quarter 2010 to the most important reference for continuing medical education.

“An entry in our online database and in the corresponding print compendium promises more interest in every cme organiser. Publishing on www.medical-congresses.com and www.dental-kongresse.de means utilising the perfect combination to attract attention to congresses, symposiums, seminars and courses“, Matthias Haack, manager of WEFRA, the publisher of the compendium, explains. The congress calendar can be ordered as of now via www.medical-congresses.com.
