About The Author:

Eric Gordan is a passionate story teller determined to conquer the hearts of millions of children in the world. He is an extensive reader of children's books and started narrating stories to his friends and classmates when he was only 6. As he grew up he adopted new approaches to his narrations by making his friends the characters of the story to make it more interesting to them. He also used to give options to his friends and classmates to choose the characters they want and then narrate stories to suit those characters. He compiled all those breath taking moments from his stories which had mesmerized all his friends, classmates and people who loved his stories for the past 23 years and narrated it to his only son. Based on the immense interest his son showed in listening to this story, Eric narrated the story to his son's friends during a camping trip. Later the parents of most of the children who were there in the camping trip called up Eric to enquire about the book that had the story he narrated. This inspired Eric to publish this story as a gift which parents can give to their children. This story is guaranteed to be a story your child will narrate to their offspring in future.
