Charlottesville, Virginia. A synergy of diverse minds are developing the blueprint for America 's next great revival. The text entitled "Independent America" will lay out the vision of two gifted and determined individuals with the courage and conviction to conduct an historic run for the White House.

It started with a vision from a our leader Daniel Imperato, an international businessman respected for his ability to succeed in challenging circumstances, his adept delegation skills and his negotiating expertise. It is complimented by the addition of Webster Brooks Jr., a capable scholar dedicated to the study of independent movements, and third party formations. Together Imperato and Brooks announce the formation of Independent America – a movement dedicated to empowering American citizens to independently get involved in the critical government decisions that affect their everyday lives.

In the past six months both Imperato and Brooks have been laying the groundwork for this new revival. Traversing the country and the globe, listening to voters as well as respected world leaders, these two men – diverse in background, committed in spirit – have come to understand the unique challenges that face America. They are much better equipped than any elected official who loses touch with the grassroots, and becomes blinded by the perpetual posturing for reelection.

The historical combination of Imperato/Brooks uniting 31 months in advance of the 2008 election will restore the voice of the people and reinvigorate independently-minded citizens to commit to voting for something new, rather than against something less. In Imperato 's words, "Giving the White House back to the American people is the only way we can restore the independence that our veterans have secured for our citizens. "

Chronicling their plan for a peaceful prosperity in the 21st century will be freelance writer/political activist Joseph Oddo. Chairing the campaign team will be Dan Mangru, an organizational expert. Heading up the field operation will be Joshua Yager, who will begin the petition process as determined by each state 's criteria.

Mangru states, "We know that many Americans share the vision of this team in their heart. Now rather than settling for what the political establishment offers, they can confidently cast a vote for their rights, their freedom, and to reestablish the United States of America as the global leader. People that haven't voted for years will find a reason to because this team arrives independent from shady influences that corrupt the political process in Washington."

Joseph Oddo, author of the upcoming book adds, "We are giving Americans an opportunity to quietly and confidently vote their conscious. Votes can trump money when it comes to influencing legislation. And now with the first legitimate independent choice since Ross Perot, we are asking people to not even pay attention to the millions that will be spent to influence their decision. Instead get involved with us in your community. Help us close the gap of unchallenged races by running for office. Then proudly cast your Independent vote for victory in November 2008.

"The empowered citizens of this independent America will all prosper, yielding more time to participate in their child's education. An informed citizenry can shape decisions made in their local governments. Decisions that affect their lives much more so than those made at the federal level. No longer will our enlightened citizens settle for the unaccountable representation that comes with unopposed elected officials. As a determined alternative, the Independents will challenge for every seat up for election, and welcome the accountability to the people who elect them. "

The historical vehicle for this drive to victory for Independents is the Imperato/Brooks campaign for the White House. The blueprint will be unveiled in the upcoming book entitled, "Independent America ". They are welcoming new members to their team now, and beginning to select a team to head the government agencies. Their cabinet will consist of the most qualified individuals – not those whom are owed a political favor. "We saw what happens when our guard is down and unqualified individuals are overwhelmed by a natural disaster. Too many America lives are at stake to allow this incompetence to continue," added Carey Campbell, chairmen of the Independent Greens of Virginia and a supporter of this new team.

"Voter input is being solicited now for the text," Oddo concludes. "E-mail me to complete a survey. We welcome your response, and are counting on you – the American people – to make us an Independent America once again".

About Webster Brooks

Webster Brooks was born in Colorado (1956) to an Army family and was raised in Detroit. As a young student, Brooks' first political experience was giving a speech with US Congressman John Conyers in 1966, who is still in Congress today. In Detroit, Brooks saw the pride and spirit of Middle America growing up in a town that was heavily influenced by the auto industry and Motown music. Twenty Four years later, he ran for Mayor of Washington DC in 1990 as independent, and then worked with many democrats, republicans and independent in politics.

In 2002, Brooks' organization, The National Black Republican Network, became the most popular public forum for Black conservatives and Republicans, but included independents as well. Brooks was named as one of 'The 20 Most Influential Black Conservatives' by Headway Magazine and an 'Intellectual Tour de Force' by the Detroit News. During this time, Brooks chaired the National Congress of Black Conservatives and the National Black Coalition for School Choice. As an avid reader of history, Brooks serves on the board of the John E. Rogers African American Culture Center, the Descendents of the Connecticut 29th Black Civil war Unit and the State of Connecticut, and takes joy in raising his two children, Taylor and Forrest.
