Press release from: Nvolve Ltd

Nvolve limited an Irish based technology business has revealed that Sharepoint and .Net applications proved to be their most popular programming language utilised by firms in 2008. Nvolve limited's software division have seen significant growth despite the current economic climate. The main reason for this is that Nvolve's software portfolio provides clients with the solution that can ultimately increase a firm's profitability. The significant cost savings and benefits of outsourcing software projects is a very attractive package for clients faced with cut backs and tightening belts which has become buzzwords in today's working environment.

Nvolve have offices in Ireland, Northern Ireland, and also have a design centre in India where they have access to over 70 developers at any one time. Nvolve software packages are so popular due to the high level of quality they provide to clients along with a global pool of technical knowledge. Nvolve's pricing strategy which is more competitive than local service providers also leads a helping hand in winning over potential clients.

Nvolve develop solutions in the field of web application development, customised application development, programming and application integration. Software skills that the team specialise in other than Sharepoint and .Net include ASP.net, MSSQL, MySQL, PHP and many more.

Nvolve's CTO (formerly from India) and a few members of his team are now permanently based in Ireland where clients have access to a pool of global talent. The team have extensive experience in managing and implementing large and small software developments projects. A selection of clients they have worked with in the past include Economic Systems Inc., Casestack Inc., LawRoom, National Institute of Health Sciences, Qmax and DCW Limited.

Any member of the Nvolve team can be contracted for one week or for one year depending on the needs and requirements of the clients. Nvolve's IT team are available 'on demand' with no long term commitment. Clients will also be provided with a local project manager who will be available at all times to discuss and manage the development.

Nvolve limited was set up in 2006 and has skilfully developed two divisions of their business; Software Solutions and Learning Technology Solutions. The Nvolve Software division was formed as a direct result of Nvolve's strategic investment with an Indian design team who they used in development of their core product in their learning technologies division (Nvolve Response™ Blended Learning Solution) which they now sell to the market. Nvolve offer a complete bespoke outsourcing IT service for businesses ranging from start-ups to large enterprises that realise they need professional software solution in place quickly and efficiently and do not have the time or available resources to recruit locally.
