

Aero-domains with two and three letters

Date: 02-02-2009 02:45 PM CET

Category: Logistics & Transport

Press release from: Secura GmbH

The actual regulations of com-domains and the policies of almost all registries exclude domain names with two letters. The aero-domain is the great exception:

SITA has convinced ICANN to permit aero-domains consisting of two letters at certain conditions.

Airlines or aircraft operator can register a specific aero-domain, which will be still more important in the future, when SITA is developing technical features as e.g. RFID.

They can register the 2-Letter-IATA-Code as aero-domain. Many great airlines have already done this. They are a good example. Some airlines use the code in the communications with the passengers at tickets, leaflets or paint it at your airplanes.

SITA has released currently reserved special industry and other reserved domain names for registration by eligible members of the aviation community.

SITA has released many three-letter aero-domains, which have reserved as IATA-Code for airports. Aero-domains with three letters are a good choice, if companies belonging to the aviation community are using acronyms.

Hans-Peter Oswald

www.domainregistry.de/aero-domain.html

Secura is accredited at ICANN for all generic Top Level Domains. Secura can register all generic top level domains and all active country domains www.com-domains.com

When domainnamebuyers.com was still independent, it listed the ICANN Registrar Secura from Cologne in Germany among the best registrars of the world. The position of Secura is almost unique: It is accredited for all generic Top Level Domains at ICANN, and registers almost all country Top Level Domains. Secura has contracts with many registries like DENIC, AFNIC, NOMINET for this purpose. Secura sells to resellers, but also to private customers, who visit Secura's website at www.domainregistry.de (German) or www.com-domain.com (English). The basic informations are also available in other languages - from Hungarian to Chinese. Secura gives support in many different languages: English, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, German, Dutch, Swedish, Hungarian, Russian, Polish, Serbian, Croatian, Ukrainian, Finnish and Belorussian. Customers can easily pay by credit card, but also by many other ways. Secura publishes a Domains Blog, in order to inform about new developments in the domain business (www.20six.de/secura) You may re-publish this article without any fees, but you should mention the author and the URL at the end of the article

You may re-publish this article without any fees, but you should mention the author and the URL at the end of the article

Secura GmbH

Am Alten Posthof 4-6

D-50667 Koeln

secura@domainregistry.de

www.domainregistry.de

Tel. +49 221 2571213
Fax +49 221 9252272
ICANN accredited registrar
of Top Level Domains

You can find this press release here