Beijing – Today Imperiali Organization (www.imperiali.org) and i1connect (www.i1connect.com), expanded its presence in the telecommunications, broadcast, technology, and production with its presence at the China Cable & Broadcast Show, CCBN 2006, (www.ccbn.tv).

“We have a firm belief, here at the Imperiali Organization, that technology and innovation will be the main drivers of the new global economy, where the gaps of distance and time are reduced to a push of a button,” stated Mangru of Imperiali Organization.

At the CCBN, Imperiali Organization and i1connect viewed the latest in satellite technology, telecom switches and routers, and value-add business such as DVR, PVR, HD, IPTV, double model etc with the appearance of newest STB (Set Top Boxes).

CCBN has long been the advocator of new development of China’s broadcasting, telecommunications, electronics, and television industry.

“There is a tremendous amount of cutting-edge technology that is applicable to the global marketplace. The Imperiali Organization is able to reach out across continents to exchange the most innovative ideas, services and products from all over the world. We feel that the opportunity in this area is huge and with the expertise of our organization, the opportunity is real,” asserted Mangru.

Mangru has been expanding Asia Pacific relations for the Imperiali Organization, i1connect, and all of the affiliated projects for the organization with stops in Tokyo, Seoul, Hanoi, Hong Kong, and Beijing.

The nature of those relations has been diverse, ranging from international investment bankers and fund managers, to filmmakers, fashion houses, global entrepreneurs, and media.
