AURORA, CO -- Cases.com, a leading provider of trendy phone cases and PDA cases, welcomes the sleek and stylish OtterBox Defender to its versatile line of Blackberry Storm cases. The new Blackberry Storm 9500 case provides superior defense against environmental factors with three distinct layers of protection.

The OtterBox Defender case for Blackberry Storm boasts a slim, user-friendly design that offers easy access all of the exemplary features of the SmartPhone, including access to the ports, camera and buttons. For added convenience, the Blackberry Storm case offers a multipurpose ratcheting belt clip to keep the phone within reach at all times. Unlike previous OtterBox Blackberry cases, the new Defender case for Blackberry Storm incorporates a sliding design for added accessibility.

In addition to its attractive exterior design, the OtterBox Defender case for Blackberry Storm provides superior defense against shocks, scratches, dings, and even dust through three distinct layers of protection. The first layer effectively protects the SurePress touch screen through a clear membrane. Next, a high impact resistant Polycarbonate shell serves as an integrated second level of protection by surrounding the entire phone. Lastly, a protective silicone cover is secured to the Polycarbonate shell to help absorb potentially threatening bumps and shocks.

"All OtterBox cases include a complementary combination of unique features with functional design, and the new Defender case for Blackberry Storm is no exception. Blackberry owners that like a sleek and stylish look that provides superior protection are sure to love this trendy Blackberry case," says Alex German of Cases.com. (www.cases.com).

Since 1996, OtterBox has produced superior cases for popular handheld devices, including Blackberry, Palm, and iPhone brand products. The Colorado-based firm prides itself in its unique and innovative designs that provide maximum safeguarding against the toughest environmental elements.

"The protection provided by the OtterBox Defender case is simply unparalleled, and we are confident that our customers will be as thoroughly impressed with its sleek and functional design as we are," says German.
