Bangkok, Thailand – Agilemobile.com Ltd., a software development company with its primary focus on development of software for mobile phones and handheld computers, has announced the release of Agile Messenger for Windows Mobile 5.0.

Agile Messenger is a multi-protocol instant messaging client for mobile phones and handheld computers and provides a seamless connection to the public instant messaging networks of ICQ, AOL, Yahoo!, MSN, Google Talk and any other XMPP networks.

Features include AgileMobile's patent pending proprietary push to talk technology which enables users to send instant voice messages from mobile to mobile, and mobile to PC, as well as instant multimedia messaging, enabling the transfer of images and video. In addition to the Windows Mobile 5.0 platform, Agile Messenger is also available for Symbian Series 60, 80, 90 and Symbian UIQ.

A free beta version of Agile Messenger for Windows Mobile 5.0 can be downloaded from www.AgileMobile.com.

"We are extremely excited about Microsoft's new mobile operating system, Windows Mobile 5.0, and its wide adoption by mobile phone and handheld computer manufacturers and we are fully committed to supporting this platform," said Timon Haringa, co-founder and technical director of AgileMobile.com Ltd. "Agile Messenger enables people on the go to stay in contact with co-workers, family and friends, anywhere, anytime, any place and thanks to the advanced new handheld computers and mobile phones running Windows Mobile 5.0 the Agile Messenger user experience is becoming ever more rewarding."

Other AgileMobile.com instant messaging products include AgileLCS, a mobile SIP/SIMPLE instant messaging client for MS Live Communication Server and AgileIMPS, a Wireless Village client supporting the OMA IMPS standard.
