ADSI, a leading system integrator of distribution, wireless and shipping automation continues to be on track with expansion and growth.

Hoffman Estates, IL, August 28, 2009 ADSI announced today its progress for growth in 2009. In the past few months, Aaron Melness, Ray Giron, Chris Zevchik, Brad Williams and Bob Horecka have joined the sales organization. These new sales executives are all seasoned professionals in the warehouse, distribution and supply chain industries focused on proving the capabilities of ADSI's tightly integrated solutions for wireless and shipping automation.

“We continue to be on plan for growth in revenue and expansion into territories that are supported by a dynamic sales team highly experienced in the industry,” said Bob Fischer, president of ADSI. “For companies learning about ADSI's organization and solutions, it's imperative that we are represented by qualified individuals that add value to an organizations bottom line.”

The sales organization is supported by a centralized support staff with expertise in wireless networks, software and hardware solutions for shipping and logistics, pick – pack – ship – track solutions and enterprise printing. In addition, ADSI's professional services staff supports requirements unique to organizations. The staff offers an array of expertise focusing on software quality, process improvement, project management and deployment.

“By providing organizations with the depth of talent in sales, support and professional services, we continue to bring proven solutions to the industry that contributes to the bottom line savings,” concluded Mr. Fischer.
